

Common Application member colleges allowing or requesting resumes in the 2022-23 application process

By mid-October 2022, about 985 out of 1025 Common Application member institutions launched 2022-23 applications. Of these colleges, 334 either permit or actively encourage the submission of resumes. Most provide for resume uploads within the Common App, usually as a question most frequently found in the college's member section labeled "Activities" or less frequently as part of a college's "Writing Supplement." But a number of Common App members are less obvious about their interest in receiving a resume. Sometimes the request is part of an "alternate" admissions application, an honors application, portfolio instructions or a scholarship application. Many times, the reference is tucked into application instructions contained on the institution's website as a possible application "enhancement" or an optional document to be provided through the applicant portal (to some extent these references are marked on the list). Note that numerous colleges "hint" they would be open to receiving a resume, but unless the term is specifically referenced on the application or the website (or a college rep has suggested in a presentation that the document is welcomed by the institution), the college is not included on these lists.
